BUT NOT DYER CONFIDENCE The virtue of self-reliance was the subject of the sermon delivered Sunday evening at St. Patrick's church by Father Colman, of the Order of Passionists of Boston. This was the final Sunday evening service of the present Lenten season. A feature of the musical part of the service, which was excellently carried out under the direction of Prof. F. L. Farrell, organist was a colo. The Paims, by Charles E. Dyer, of Sachem street, who has recently returned from Europe.

who has recently returned from Europe.

Speaking from the denial of Christ by St. Peter, the preacher said that St. Peter was in reality a noble character. The more we read about St. Peter the more we love him. When St. Peter said he would rather die than deny Jesus Christ he meant it. The trouble was he had too much confidence in himself. If he had not been over confident he would have realized that Jesus speaking to him was the voice of God and that Jesus knew what was to happen when he said, "This night shait thou deny Me thrice."

St. Peter's over confidence made him forget that it was God, looking into the future, who was warning him. He, was over confident in himself and because he was over confident he did not seek help from God. When temptation came he fell. He turned his back on Jesus Christ and declared he did not know Him. What a selid lesson for each one of us! To think this great apostle would fall so low through over confidence!

apostic would fall so low through over confidence!

There is not a man or woman here who doesn't hope to save his soul. How many of you ask God Almighty to help you in this great undertaking? How many of you ask God Almighty to assist you in the work of your own salvation? How many go days and days and say prayer only on Sunday when they come to holy mass? They depend entirely on themselves and is it a wonder we find so many of them falling by the wayside? They have too much confidence in themselves, and some of them too late find out that of themselves they can do nothing.

Temptation will come to you and you wender why you don't conquer it. Some say. "There is no use in trying to be good; I can't be good. They are having the same experience that St. Pater and
